CARNOT'S SUCCESSOR.

M. Casimir-Perier Chosen on the First Ballot.

HIS QUIET ENTRY INTO PARIS.

The Usual Formalities of Inauguration Postponed Until After Carnot's Funeral. The New President Requests Carnot's Ministry to Remain in Office.

PARIS, June 28.—The electoral congress, called to elect a president of the French republic to succeed the late President Carnot, began its session in the palace at Versailles at 1:10 yesterday afternoon, M. Challemel-Lacour, president of the senate, presiding. The great hall of the palace was crowded, and the galleries were thronged with spectators. Nearly all the members of the diplomatic corps were present among the latter. Great precautions had been taken at Versailles to prevent anarchist outrages.

M. Challemel-Lacour, after a sympathetic reference to the late President Carnot, read the articles of the constitution relative to the election of a president, and then declared the national assembly open.

Just before the balloting opened a Socialist deputy shouted "I demand the abolition of the presidency!" Another deputy cried. "Down with dictators!" There were other cries from various parts of the hall, which were lost in the general hubbub of the election.

The following is the result of the poll: M. Casimir-Perier, 451, M. Brisson, 191, M. Dupuy, 90, General Ferrier, 53, M. Arago, 27, scattering, 83.

After voting the members went to the Galerie des Tombeaux, where there was an animated scene, during which M. Casimir-Perier drove into the court yard in a landau. He was immediately surrounded by senators and deputies, who repeatedly and enthusiastically cheered him. The Socialists, however, made vociferous protests. Premier Dupuy read the figures of the election to the newly elected president.

M. Challemel-Lacour then delivered a most eloquent oration, during which the new president was deeply moved.

In reply M. Casimir-Perier said "I can scarcely restrain the emotion I now feel. The national assembly bestows upon me the greatest honor a citizen can ever receive by imposing upon me the heaviest moral responsibility a man can bear. I shall give my country all that is in me of energy and patriotism. I shall give the republic all the warmth of my convictions, which have never varied. I shall give the democracy all my devotion and all my heart, as did he whose loss we now deplore. Finally, I shall endeavor to do all my duty."

Those who were close to M Casimir-Perier when he left Versailles in order to make his formal entry into Paris as president say that he was greatly moved by the honor conferred upon him. He received the congratulations of Dupuy and the cabinet ministers and a large number of senators and deputies in the room set apart for the use of the cabinet.

Later President Casimir-Perier received the congratulations of the correspondents of the various newspapers represented at Versailles. Replying to the newspaper men, M. Casimir-Perier said. "I have only one word to say. You may discuss me—I belong to you—but never forget France and the republic."

Half an hour after the election the newly elected president drove towards Paris, escorted by a body of dragoons. As he drove he bowed pleasantly. He looked younger than his age. He has an erect carriage and precipitate diction, and there is little of the common in his air. His countenance and bearing are rather military, though he is a civilian. M. Casimir-Perier called upon Mme Carnot on entering Paris, and begged her to stay at the palace of the Elysee as long as it was convenient to her. In the meanwhile he will make the foreign ministry his official residence.

The president's cortege followed the high road to the city, and then passed along the Avenue des Champs Elysees. As the remains of M. Carnot are yet unburied the usual installation at the Palace of the Elysee was foregone. M Casimir-Perier was driven direct to the Quai d Orsay, where he arrived at 7 20 last evening. A battalion of troops was awaiting his coming, and when the carriage in which he was riding came in sight a band began to play the "Marseilles."

A cordon of police and Republican guards lined the pavement about the ministry of foreign affairs. A tri-colored flag was unfurled from the central window of the building as the president approached. He was greeted with shouts of "Long Live Casimir-Perier!" "Long Live the Republic!" General Borius, chief of M Carnot's military household who was in full uniform, received the president at the entrance, while the other officers of M Carnot's military household awaited him at the top of the steps.

The ministers, shortly after the president's arrival, formally tendered their resignations to him. M Casimir-Perier requested them to remain in office. It is doubtful, however, whether M Dupuy, the prime minister, will retain office. It is expected, in the event of his insisting upon his resignation being accepted, that the president will summon M Burdeau to form a cabinet. This will enable M Dupuy to hold his position of president of the chamber of deputies.

THE NEW PRESIDENT

A Brave Republican Who Will Have No Mercy for Anarchists.

M. Jean Paul Pierre Casimir-Perier was born in Paris on Nov. 8, 1847. His grandfather was president of the council under King Louis Philippe, and his father was a minister under the first president of the republic, M Thiers. During the Franco-Prussian war M Casimir-Perier served with distinctive bravery with the volunteers of the Aube, who were called to the defense of Paris, gaining the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

In February, 1871 he became minister of the interior and chief of the cabinet of his father. At the general elections of February, 1876, as a straight Republican, he was elected to represent Nugent-Sur-Seine, and voted with the Left Center against the Broglie ministry. In the elections which followed the dissolution M. Casimir-Perier was re-elected, and when the Republican cabinet of Dec 14 was formed he was appointed under secretary of state in the department of public instruction.

Following the adoption by the chamber of the proposition which excluded from public functions the members of families which have reigned in France M Casimir-Perier resigned his seat as a deputy on Feb 1, 1883, not being able to conciliate family duties with the conduct which his conscience and republican sentiments dictated. After some hesitation he again became a candidate for election to the chamber of deputies, and on March 18 of the same year was re-elected and became under secretary of state in the ministry of war, where he remained until the resignation of the minister, General Campenon, on Jan 3, 1885. He has been a member of the chamber of deputies ever since, and was elected vice president of the chamber and president of the budget commission in 1890.

Recently M. Casimir-Perier was premier of a short lived cabinet. Later he was elected president of the chamber of deputies.

M. Casimir-Perier is a wealthy man, of strong mind, and was looked upon as the candidate of the Conservatives of France. He has shown himself to be a firm upholder of the law and the advocate of repressive measures against anarchy.

Arresting Italian Anarchists.

ROME, June 28.—The police arrested three anarchists yesterday in the precincts of the chamber of deputies. They were taken to the police station and searched. Each one of them had upon his person an accurately drawn plan of the the hall, lobbies, entrances, etc., of the chamber of deputies, showing almost conclusive evidence that their design was to explode a bomb or commit some other outrage in the building. The police in other cities in Italy have made a large number of arrests in consequence of the reported existence of an international anarchist plot to blow up public buildings and murder prominent political personages.

Victory for Central Pennsylvania Miners.

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—The meeting of the central Pennsylvania coal operators, held in this city yesterday, resulted in a split among the operators as to the schedule of wages to be offered to their striking miners. The outcome of the disagreement was the withdrawal of the Broad Top operators, and Bell, Lewis, Yates & Co., R B Wigton & Co, and eight smaller firms belonging to the central Pennsylvania district from the convention. These firms will start their mines, paying an advance of five cents per ton over present wages, or a 45 cent rate. On the other hand the opposing faction passed a series of resolutions deciding ~~not to pay more than 40~~ cents per gross and 35 cents per net ton.

He won the same class race in Philadelphia last Wednesday.

Cost of the Coke Strike.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 28.—The coke strike bids fair to outrival all its predecessors in expense. The actual cost is thought to aggregate $1,000,000. The strike is believed to have been broken, and a general resumption is expected in a short time.

THE PULLMAN BOYCOTT

Eleven Roads at Chicago Tied Up or Badly Crippled.

THE BOYCOTT SENTIMENT GROWING

Pullman Cars Taken from a Train by Strikers, and the Train Proceeds Without Them—A Tie Up on the Michigan Central Narrowly Averted.

CHICAGO, June 28.—The employes of the Chicago and Great Western railway went out last night, making a total of eleven Chicago roads now tied up or crippled by the American Railway union boycott of Pullman cars. The roads so far affected by the strike at this point are the Illinois Central, Santa Fe, Chicago and Great Western, Chicago and Northern Pacific, Western Indiana, Wisconsin Central, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Wabash, Grand Trunk, Monon and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad companies. On some of these roads Pullman cars are still being carried, but the strike leaders confidently asserted that tonight will see the boycott completely effected.

The men, who have been leaving slowly and in small lots, are beginning to show the effects of the A R U "missionary" work, and today the boycott sentiment is much more general and apparent than at any previous time since the strike began. An attempt was made last evening to send out ~~the St. Paul train on the~~ Chicago and Great Western, with a Pullman sleeper attached. The train started out, but when it was found that the sleeper had been coupled on a trainman pulled the bell rope, and as the engineer reversed the engine twenty men rushed to the coupling, and in a few moments the train pulled out, leaving the Pullman in the depot.

Crowds of strikers and sympathizers gathered in the railroad yards in different portions of the city, and the police were kept busy quelling threatened riots. Strikers drove Illinois Central employes from the yards at Froham despite the efforts of a detail of police and an additional force was sent to that point. Later in the evening a large crowd gathered in the Western Indiana yards at Archer avenue, and became so threateningly demonstrative that the police force there was doubled.

The three signal men who control the switches at the Western Indiana tracks at Archer avenue joined the strikers at 8 30 o clock last night blocking the system. Under a heavy police guard a new signalman was placed in the tower and the blockade was raised, the crowd making no demonstrations. At 9 30 o clock the San Francisco limited over the Santa Fe, with four Pullman cars, passed the crossing in safety the crowd making no demonstration. The seventy-five signalmen and fifteen switchmen employed in the Western Indiana yards are all on strike.

A general tie up on the Michigan Central road was narrowly averted yesterday afternoon. The union was notified that the Michigan Central was engaged in switching coaches for the road whose men are out. The superintendent of the Michigan Central was at once notified that if there was any further attempt on the part of his road to assist the Illinois Central every man in the employ of the Michigan Central would be called out. Orders were given the men by the company to have nothing more to do with the Illinois Central cars.

The Michigan Central trains which run out over the Illinois Central tracks made their scheduled time without any difficulty. Every time one of them passed with its Wagner cars the crowds at Grand Crossing cheered.

The American Railway union men in the employ of the Southern Pacific have asserted their power. As a result of their attempt to enforce the Pullman boycott passenger trains are tied at every railroad center of California. Save by the local trains no passengers are leaving San Francisco or Oakland, and there is every indication that the tie up may be protracted. An official of the Southern Pacific company declared that if they are not allowed to run Pullman coaches they will run no trains at all.

All Southern Pacific and Santa Fe trains which have hitherto pulled out of Los Angeles Cal with Pullman cars attached were tied up today on account of the boycott declared by the American Railway union against the Pullman Car company. The Santa Fe overland passenger train eastbound which should have left here at 7 o clock yesterday morning, is still here the switchmen positively refusing to attach the Pullmans to the train.

On the Montana division of the Union Pacific extending from Helena to Livingston not a wheel is moving. This is due to the fact that the shop men at the latter point have taken advantage of the Pullman boycott to present their demands for an increase of pay and in sympathy with them other employes have gone out on that division.

President Debs has issued an order for a strike on the entire Santa Fe system. The men are ordered to remain out until the discharged employes shall be reinstated. Not a wheel is moving on the entire New Mexico division.

IN SENATE AND HOUSE

Various Amendments Against the Income Tax Voted Down.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The senate had reached the last section of the income tax provision of the tariff bill when it adjourned yesterday. The debate as a whole was dull. It pertained mostly to a series of amendments offered by Mr. Hill, Mr. Allison and others, all of which were voted down, looking to the exemption of small stockholders whose dividends from corporate investments did not exceed $4 000. Just before the adjournment Section 66, directing corporations to keep books showing their receipts and expenditures and authorizing the inspection of books and papers by collectors of internal revenue and their deputies were reached. This was the signal for a very violent assault from Mr Gray, Mr Aldrich, Mr Hill and others. The general impression seems to be however, that the bill will be completed in the committee of the whole today and reported to the senate, in which event the managers of the tariff bill confidently hope to pass the bill on Saturday.

The house got into a series of deadlocks yesterday over the New Mexico statehood bill. The bone of contention was an amendment originally proposed by Mr Smith (Ills.) requiring the public schools to teach the English language. The consideration of the bill was not concluded at the hour of adjournment. A cablegram from the French government acknowledging the action of congress relative to the death of President Carnot was laid before the house, as was also a message from the president transmitting the latest Hawaiian correspondence. A resolution was adopted extending the appropriations for the current fiscal year for thirty days from the 30th inst.

The Crisis in Asia.

SHANGHAI, June 28.—Viceroy Li Hung Chang says that China, at the Corean king's request, and by virtue of her suzerainty, sent troops and quelled the rebellion in Corea. Japanese interference was needless although Japan was entitled to send troops. China now desires to withdraw, but Japan refuses to evacuate simultaneously, and proposes a joint reoccupation and administration of Corean finances and the introduction of reforms. These tasks China cannot accept. Japan's attitude threatens a crisis in eastern Asia.

Yale Yachtsmen Win.

NEW LONDON Conn., June 28.—Yale boats proved speedier flyers and Yale men better sailors in yesterday's yacht races between the rival colleges, and once again the crimson bows to the prowess of the blue. The score, Yale 21. Harvard 16. tells the story. Five events were on the card, Yale winning three firsts and three seconds while Harvard secured two firsts, two seconds and two thirds. The rowing races were postponed on account of rough water.

MR. SINGERLY CHOSEN.

The Standard Bearer of Pennsylvania's Democracy.

J. F. RILLING FOR SECOND PLACE.

All the Nominations on the State Ticket Made by Acclamation—The Platform Denounces the American Protective Association.

HARRISBURG, June 28.—The Democratic ticket named yesterday by the state convention is as follows: For governor, William M. Singerly of Philadelphia; lieutenant governor, John F. Bucher of Lewisburg and Hannibal K Sloan of Indiana. Ex-Judge Bucher, however positively declines the nomination.

The work of the convention was conducted with alacrity. Chairman Stranahan, of the state committee, announced the temporary officers, and then introduced Temporary Chairman Robert E Wright, who made a ringing address. The appearance of Mr. Hensel upon the platform was greeted with loud applause. Mr Hensel said the Democracy of Pennsylvania is not dead, demoralized or daunted. There is nothing in the political situation to dishearten a Pennsylvania Democrat.

J. F RILLING.

Arthur G Dewalt, of Lehigh, presented from the committee on resolutions the platform, which was adopted. It endorses the administrations of President Cleveland and Governor Pattision, demands a speedy passage of the tariff bill, denounces the dereliction and profligacy of the Republican majority in the legislative branches of the state government, and, while deploring all differences between employer and employe, depreciates the resort to force for settlement of questions that should be determined by peaceful arbitrament. "We recognize the right of every citizen to be protected in the free enjoyment of his property, and of the privilege to work when, for whom and at what wages he will."

Regarding the American Protective Association the platform says: "We reassert the old Democratic doctrine of equal rights and religious liberty; we are opposed to all secret political organizations which strike at freedom of conscience, and we declare that no party can justly be deemed national, constitutional or in accordance with American principles which is animated by a spirit of proscription or religious intolerance."

In addition to the platform the following was adopted. "The convention sincerely deplores the death of the president of the French republic, and desires to emphasize its sympathy with the endeavor to perpetuate Democratic principles in foreign lands, and it hereby condemns all tendency to anarchy and assassination."

The convention then proceeded to the nomination of candidates. R. Jones Monaghan, of West Chester, nominated William M. Singerly, of Philadelphia, for governor. The nomination was seconded by Maurice F. Wilhere, of Philadelphia. Mr Singerly was nominated by acclamation.

The nomination of Mr. Singerly having been disposed of, no time was lost with the rest of the ticket, all the nominees being named by acclamation.

This committee was appointed to notify the candidates of their nomination: John C. Bane of Washington, Judiah Isaac of Philadelphia, Patrick Foley of Pittsburg, Nathan Savage of Clearfield, M J Fahey of Lackawanna, Albert Broadhead of Northampton, W A. Marr of Schuylkill and Thomas Elcock of Montgomery.

THOMAS NAST OF LONDON.

The Remarkable Career That the Once Great Cartoonist Had in This Country.

The news that Thomas Nast has gone to making political cartoons on the Pall Mall Gazette in London caused a ripple of astonishment wherever artists gather in this town. The career that he thus brings to a close in America has indeed been a very remarkable one. About Nast's origin and early life very little has been made public, but it has always been gossiped among the artists that he is partly Italian, German and Jewish, and that before he came to America he was with Garibaldi in that patriot's army. As an artist he first went to work for Frank Leslie in this city. The most important work he did for him is said to have been the Heenan-Sayers fight in England. Soon afterward he began work upon Harper's Weekly. He did not at once develop the gift which made him the most talked of artist and the most powerful cartoonist in America. But from the first he made cartoons and little else. They were not humorous at the start, but the year being 1864, were upon war subjects and were patriotic and sentimental.

Toward the close of that year, when McClellan was nominated for president by the Democrats, Nast began his political work, which ended brilliantly in 1871, when he began his attacks on William M. Tweed. Most of his work up to and at that time was drawn with pen or pencil directly upon the wooden blocks which were to be carved out into wood cuts afterward. He did a part of his work with india ink "wash" on the wood in the same way. He parted with the Harpers later, owing, it was said, to difference of political opinion, but returned to The Weekly after a long absence at a salary that was considered remarkable. Some said that he got $15,000 a year, and some said that the figure was $10,000. But his star had declined. Keppler had filled the field and with merits that Nast never had. Keppler had no limitations or fetters. He was an absolute free lance, his sense of humor was broader and his power of satire was keener. Moreover he made artistic pictures enhanced by the use of gay colors. Nast could not recover his old place as the chief of our cartoonists. He had made a great deal of money, but it was said that he lost most of it. He went into a western mining venture and speculated in other ways without success. He took up newspaper work last of all, but it was evident that in every field he had been distanced by those who had the artistic faculty supplemented by artistic training. Nast never had either. He drew very clumsily and crudely.

Had he been able to keep pace with the artistic progress of the country or had he stopped work in 1872 his fame would have been splendid. During the closing year of the war he was more detested in the south than the most rabid abolitionist in Boston, and in the same measure he was idolized in the north. The Union League club of this city gave him a present of plate for what he did to glorify patriotism and the northern cause. When he fought Tweed with his pencil, it was reported that his life was threatened and that great bribes were offered to him. Tweed was reported to have said that Nast's pictures worried him more than all that was written by his opponents.

Mr. Nast lived well in a pretty suburban home and had many warm friends around him. His personal popularity was very great all over the country. His lecture trips, when he gave blackboard talks all over the country, made him well known in even the smaller cities, and travelers say that today there is scarcely a clubhouse between this city and the Pacific coast wherein the visitor will not see Thomas Nast's bearded face drawn by himself, framed and in a place of honor. It was his ability to express a popular sentiment in a picture that gave him his vogue. Whether he can remodel his mind to fit the English taste remains to be seen.—New York Sun.

A Unique Mining Outfit.

Henry Spencer, a Colorado miner, is fitting out a small naphtha launch for a novel prospecting tour. He intends to work the bottom of the Sacramento river above Redding, and he is confident that his venture will prove successful. The launch is 40 feet long and is propelled with an eight horsepower engine. In the bow of the boat he has placed a peculiar pump, which was constructed from his own design. The pump will be operated by the engine, and it is calculated to suck up the mud from the bottom of the river and throw it on a sluice which runs the full length of the boat above the cabin and extends far enough over the stern to throw all the refuse back into the river. The pump is powerful enough to suck up a good many cubic yards a day, just how many the inventor could not say, but he expected that by running at full speed it should be somewhere near 1,000. If the new mining apparatus saved half the gold from half that amount of earth from the bed of the river near Redding, it should be a paying venture, say several miners who know the country, and they are watching Mr. Spencer's mining enterprise very closely.—San Francisco Examiner.

Piano Practice For a Century.

According to a foreign contemporary, an old Italian lady, widow of the Cavaliere Alisio, celebrated her hundredth birthday on Sunday at Turin. "The venerable lady," so we read, "who accompanied her husband on the Russian campaign of 1812, enjoys excellent health and practices the piano daily." It only remains to be added to this anecdote of outrageous longevity of an accompanist that she has now embarked on Czerny's 101 exercises.

Americans Abroad.

Steamship men and others posted on the Atlantic summer travel have been estimating the number of American visitors to Europe during the coming summer. The average makes the number of first class passengers eastward about 31,000.

It's the Standard Fashion, in washing and cleaning, to use Pearline. Certainly the enormous amount of it used every year proves it. Millions of women use nothing else. And when you see a fashion so universal, so sensible, and so unchangeable, why not adopt it?

There are many things that try to imitate Pearline. Some of them may be more or less successful for a while—but the public is learning. "You can't fool all the people all the time"—and the women who want the best thing to wash with, one that is absolutely safe, will continue to use Pearline—made only by James Pyle, New York. 403

MR. WILSON TALKS.

MY Name is Wilson. I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess.

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy and secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people. I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history. The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows, but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

THEY COOKED UNSOAKED RAIN.

And by the Aid of Lightning and Snow Made a Satisfactory Meal.

"Perhaps one of the most peculiarly prepared luncheons ever laid before hungry people was one which we had when we were snowed up in the theater of a small western town," said a theatrical man to a reporter. "Upon this night, in the brief interval after the people left the theater, while we were dressing to go to our hotel, a terrific snowstorm, such as you can only find in the west, came up. The snow drifted against our doors and all about the streets, so that we had to remain all night in the theater. Of course we got hungry, as actors will sometimes do, and we began a search for something eatable.

"We prowled around the property room and were about to give up in disgust when one of the company struck a box of beans, which were used to imitate the sound of rain. By shaking the box a stage rainstorm could be produced. We took this 'rain,' as the profession is pleased to call it, but saw no way of cooking it. Some one suggested that the 'thunder' might be a good thing to cook it upon, in lieu of nothing better. The 'thunder' was a sheet of tin or iron which was shaken to make the roar of heaven's artillery. We bent the 'thunder' so that it would hold the beans, but were at a loss for means for producing heat. Our property man suggested that we use 'lightning,' a powder of lycopodium, used for making flashes upon the stage, for the fire. We found quite a lot of this, and with the addition of some 'snow'—little bits of paper used to represent the beautiful—we started quite a fire and succeeded in cooking the beans, which we ate with a relish. Resolving into stage parlance, we had used 'thunder,' 'lightning' and 'snow' to cook a lunch that consisted of 'rain.'"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Modern Woman as a Candy Buyer.

The powerful social movement in the direction of the freedom of women is being felt in this community. Women are "rising in their might" and "viewing with alarm," and all that such things imply. They are beginning to assert their rights. I saw one of them who had just sat spellbound before the fervid oratory of Miss Maude Banks when the latter shook off the yoke of woman's slavery [illegible] enter a candy store and fix her determined gaze upon the contents of a glass case.

"Those are 60 cents a pound, ma'am," said the candy girl, "and those are 45 and these are 50."

"Give me three of these and two of these and three of those," said the lady, "and mind you, I want [illegible] no more [illegible] or I won't take them."

When the customer had departed, the candy girl, who was still a [illegible] slave, leaned against the case and fanned herself with a paper bag.—New York Herald.

A Desirable Place.

We were seated in a fairly filled third class carriage not timed to make a stoppage for an hour or so, and during the first half of this period one of the passengers, a very crotchety and withal voluble individual, loudly inveighed against things in general and the places he happened to have visited in particular. All at once a quiet and sedate old gentleman, who had up to then sat silently in one corner, remarked:

"How would you like to live in a place where no one drank any intoxicating liquor or even smoked a cigar?"

"It would be excellent," replied the grumbler.

"And where everyone went to church on Sunday?"

"That would be a delightful place."

"And where no one stole or forged or cheated?"

"But such a place is impossible. Tell me, where is there such a perfect place?"

"You will find it in any of her majesty's prisons," was the quiet reply, and the grumbler was silent for the remainder of the journey.—London Tit-Bits.

Farragut's Death.

Admiral Farragut's death was due to the selfishness of a woman, Rev. James J. Kane, chaplain of the Brooklyn navy yard, said in a recent lecture. The admiral and his wife were coming from California, when a woman occupying a seat in front of them in the car opened a window. Admiral Farragut was ill, and the strong draft of wind which blew directly upon him chilled him. Mrs. Farragut asked the woman courteously if she would not kindly close the window, as it was annoying to her husband. The woman snapped out: "No, I won't close the window. I don't care if it does annoy him. I am not going to smother for him." Admiral Farragut thus caught a severe cold, which resulted in his death. A few days before the end came he said, "If I die, that woman will be held accountable."

Care of Curtains and Portieres.

When any cleaning or sweeping is in progress, the heavy curtains and portieres should be removed and after being thoroughly brushed and shaken should be allowed to hang in the air until the rooms are cleaned and ready for their return. Heavy hangings will absorb the odor from cigar smoke or from any food which may be cooking, and the greatest care should therefore be taken that they be kept well aired. The doorway curtains may be so easily removed and placed in position again that there should be no excuse for any unpleasant odor being attached to them.—James Thomson in Ladies' Home Journal.

A NEW USE FOR LOCUSTS.

A Middletowner Receives an Order for Ten Thousand of the Insects—They are Wanted for Fish Bait.

Postmaster Elwood, a few days ago, received a letter from a man at Cape Vincent, on the St. Lawrence River, asking for the name of some one who would furnish him with a quantity of seventeen-year locusts, explaining that they were wanted for fish bait.

Mr. Elwood replied, giving the name of a well known young man, who was somewhat surprised, yesterday, to receive an order for 10,000 locusts to be sent C. O. D.

Whether he will fill the order or not we do not know, but he would have no difficulty in obtaining the number required in the vicinity of Deckertown.

NOW CARE FOR THE AGED.

SUMMER WITH ITS DEBILITATING WEATHER IS HERE.

The Best of Thought and Care Is Due to the Old People—For Them to Be Strong and Happy, Refreshing Sleep Is Necessary—Paine's Celery Compound Must Now Be Taken.

Young people in the flush of health are apt to forget that the aged need help more frequently than they, to ward off weakness and to check disease.

Because there are no symptoms of any specific disease they think nothing can be done. They forget that the weaknesses of old age are general weaknesses, a difficulty of the slow organs of digestion and assimilation to properly feed the nerves and body.

The one great need, as hot, debilitating weather comes on, is for new, rich blood, free from the poisonous humors that invariably result from a stagnant condition.

The certainty with which Paine's celery compound quickly sends new blood to every part of the body is shown by a stronger pulse, fuller heart beats, and a brightening of the spirits. Sleep becomes sound and refreshing, and rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, and other results of an underfed nervous system disappear.

LEWIS C. CROSSEN.

The world of worn out, nervous, feeble men and women is indebted to Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth medical school, for the discovery of this great nerve regulator and blood purifier—the best and final fruit of a long life devoted to the study of weakness of nerve tissues, and its natural remedy.

Paine's celery compound gently stirs the workings of all the vital organs, feeds the nerves when waste in their tissues has exceeded the repair, and thus relieves nervous prostration, dyspepsia and disorders of the liver, kidneys and heart.

It builds up wasted bodies, frees weak nerves and nerve centres of irritability by supplying rich, abundant blood to build up the worn-out tissues. When there is general debility, lassitude, a loss of appetite and a lack of interest in life that comes at this season; when one looks wretched, and feels so all over, this great modern remedy goes straight to the source of the weakness and immediately gives strength and a vigor of mind and body such as must follow perfect nutrition of every organ and part of the body.

The lives of thousands of men and women past middle age who think it time to stop work, might be prolonged to many years of usefulness if they would only use Paine's celery compound, the great modern blood and nerve restorative. It will give new life, ambition and cheerfulness, as it did to Lewis C. Crossen, of North Cochecton, N. Y., who writes. "Paine's celery compound has done me a great deal of good. I have been afflicted with insomnia, nervous chills, loss of strength and poor digestion, for some time, also loss of memory, and all of these troubles are much better now. I have gained in weight since I commenced its use, and am much better and stronger in every way. I shall recommend the compound to all others."

The breath of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked, and frequently destroyed. A constant source of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which is usually the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. A. E. NICKINSON, BUSINESS MANAGER

THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 1894.

The tide has turned, and emigration now exceeds immigration. On Tuesday, 622 immigrants landed in New York, and 1,200 aliens, in the steerage of outgoing steamships, returned to the countries from which they came, convinced by hard experience that the problem of existence was easier of solution there than here.

The people of Rio de Janeiro in grateful recognition of the fact that the action of Admiral Benham in forcing the insurgent fleet to permit American vessels to go up to the city's wharves broke the blockade and hastened the downfall of the insurrection, are preparing to celebrate the Fourth of July, in honor of the United States. Subscriptions are also being raised for a monument to President Monroe, in grateful recognition of the famous doctrine associated with his name. Republics are not always ungrateful.

The platform of the National League of Republican Clubs "commends to the favorable consideration of the Republican Clubs of the United States, as a matter of education, the question of granting suffrage to women." As an illustration of the art of juggling with words, of seeming to say something and saying nothing, the sentence above quoted has no counterpart among evasive declarations of political shufflers. Reference was made to woman suffrage only as a sop to women who are agitating for the ballot, but how will women who are demanding suffrage as a matter of right accept the proposition that it be considered "as a matter of education."

The Prohibitionists of this State, at Syracuse, yesterday, nominated Francis E. Baldwin, of Elmira, for Governor. Although prohibition of the liquor traffic is asserted to be the dominant issue in American politics, the long platform touches on many minor issues. It favors woman suffrage, government ownership of all monopolies, postal savings banks, a non-partisan tariff commission, and the issue of all currency by the federal government, and is outspoken in its opposition to religious tests of citizenship, demagogy in the halls of legislation and corrupt political methods, back of all of which it sees the corrupting influence of the saloon.

Although the Democrats of Pennsylvania are in a hopeless minority, they are a sturdy band, loyal to Democratic principles and outspoken in their declaration of their faith. The platform adopted by the State convention, at Harrisburg, yesterday, is a model of what a Democratic platform should be. It ascribes the derangement of business, the reduction of wages, the troubles between labor and capital, the unequal distribution of profits, and the gross disparity in social conditions, to Republican legislation. The squandering of the surplus and the diminishing of the revenues by the McKinley tariff are rightly assigned as reasons for the financial straits in which the government has found itself, and the President is heartily commended for his courage and determination in maintaining the national credit, and for his efforts in behalf of good government. Any legislation tending to the debasement of the currency or the depreciation of any dollar issued by the government to the people is condemned. The old Democratic doctrine of equal rights and religious liberty is reaffirmed, and it is broadly asserted that "no party can be deemed national, constitutional or in accordance with American principles, which is animated by a spirit of political proscription or religious intolerance."

TAKEN TO DANNEMORA.

LIZZIE HALLIDAY ON THE WAY TO THE PRISON WHERE SHE WILL MEET HER DOOM.

Sheriff Beecher Starts, This Morning, With the Condemned Murderess, via the O. and W.—The Prisoner Very Violent—Force Necessary to Get Her on the Train—Uncanny Scenes in the Tunnels—Gagged by the Sheriff.

Unless executive clemency intervenes Elizabeth Halliday will be electrocuted in Dannemora State Prison during the week beginning August 6th.

The adjourned session of the court was held in Monticello, yesterday afternoon, and Judge Edwards handed the warrant to Sheriff Beecher. Then the prisoner, whose hair was braided and tied in a knot at the back of her head with several wraps of twine, raised her hand and tore the string loose. Sheriff Beecher grabbed her hand and exclaimed: "Here, you behave!" She was quiet for a moment, and then stamped her foot several times on the floor.

As the wretched woman was led through the aisle to her cell she kicked a spectator.

AN EARLY MORNING RIDE.

Mrs. Lizzie Halliday, the condemned murderess, was taken from Monticello to Dannemora prison, to-day. During the early morning hours, Sheriff and Mrs. Beecher and Deputy John Rice drove with the prisoner from Monticello to Fallsburgh to meet the Sullivan County Express on the Ontario and Western. They went to Dannemora via Albany and Plattsburg.

Mrs. Halliday was quiet during the drive, but when the train rolled into the station she screamed loudly and resisted the efforts of her attendants to get her aboard the train. It required the combined strength of the sheriff and his deputy to finally force the struggling woman into the smoking car. She was forced into a seat and manacled to Deputy Rice, while the sheriff and his wife took a seat facing the prisoner.

AN OBJECT OF INTEREST TO PASSENGERS.

All of the passengers were aroused by the commotion and it took but a moment for the intelligence to spread through the train that the notorious "butcher of Burlingham," was on board. The smoker was soon crowded, many women flocking into the car to catch a glimpse of their unfortunate sister.

When the Fallsburgh tunnel was entered, Mrs. Halliday began to shriek and struggle; she seemed frightened at the darkness.

AN UNCANNY EXPERIENCE.

It was an uncanny experience even for men and the women, who had gone into the smoker became panic stricken. They made a wild rush to escape from the car and it was with difficulty that the train hands kept them from rushing across the platform in the darkness of the tunnel.

IN THE SHAWANGUNK MOUNTAIN TUNNEL.

This scene was repeated in the Shawangunk Mountain tunnel, which is more than a mile in length. The train seemed an hour in traversing the length of the tunnel while the maniac uttered a series of blood curdling shrieks which were mingled with exclamations of horror from the passengers. All hands breathed easier when the Bloomingburgh end was reached and the miserable creature in their midst subsided in comparative quiet as the train rushed out into the sunlight again.

A MOST VIOLENT OUTBREAK.

Just before Middletown was reached came the culmination of the woman's deviltry. She kicked and struggled and screamed and struck out viciously with her manacled hands, despite a somewhat severe choking at the hands of the sheriff. The attendants endeavored to check her screams by tying a handkerchief over her mouth, but she chewed the cloth and yelled the louder.

GAGGED BY THE SHERIFF.

Finally, Sheriff Beecher produced a gag from the hand satchel he carried and seizing the opportunity when her mouth was opened for a yell, he quickly thrust it between her teeth and tied it deftly at the back of her head. For a moment the mad woman struggled furiously, but at length, leaned sullenly back in the seat, as if exhausted by her struggles.

THE SHERIFF'S "HAPPIEST DAY.".

Sheriff Beecher said, this morning, that he had never seen the woman act so violently. Since her conviction, she has refused to eat and has slept but little. She has renewed her uncleanly habits in their most filthy form. The genial sheriff summed it up feelingly, this morning. "It will be," said he, "the happiest day since I was elected, when I have turned this creature safely over to the Warden at Dannemora."

The Warden of Dannemora and the jail physician will probably make a mental examination and report to the Governor.

SAD DROWNING ACCIDENT.

A Boy Loses His Life While Bathing in Turner's Mill Pond

Yesterday afternoon, about 2 o'clock, Albert, the thirteen-year-old son of Gustave Haffeman, and a little lad named Johnnie Crook, of Turners, went swimming in the mill pond, just west of the depot. The Haffeman boy, while playing in the water, got beyond his depth, and, being unable to swim, sank in eight feet of water. His young companion, realizing the situation, ran to his home and told his mother, who gave an alarm, and several persons hurried to the pond.

The boy pointed out the spot where young Haffeman went down and Chas. Meyers put down a garden rake and brought the body to the surface. It had then been in the water twenty five minutes, but it was hoped that resuscitation was possible and for an hour and a half parties worked with the body, but there was not the least sign of life and they reluctantly gave up the effort.

Albert was the only son. He was a bright boy and was not only beloved by his parents, but liked by everybody in the village and his death has brought sorrow to many hearts. His parents are almost frantic with grief.

Coroner Decker was called and held an inquest, last evening.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Flagman Briggs Knocked Down by an O. and W. Train.

About 1:20 o'clock, this afternoon, Flagman Briggs at the Beattie avenue crossing of the O. and W., had a very narrow escape from death.

He was on the track in front of an engine which was standing still, when, without his knowledge, eighteen coal cars that were being switched, ran down against the engine, starting it ahead.

Briggs was struck by the pilot and knocked down upon the rails and pushed along about ten feet before the engine could be stopped. He very narrowly escaped being crushed by the pony trucks, but almost miraculously he escaped with a few bruises and scratches that are not considered serious.

WANT TO BE MOTORMEN.

A Conductor's Job Not the Snap It is Supposed To Be.

For the past two or three days several of the conductors on the electric cars have been taking turns at the motor for the purpose of learning to run the cars. When asked the reason one of the conductors said:

"This conductor's job isn't the snap it is supposed to be, we all want to be motormen and are learning so that we will be ready to take the job when more cars are put on."

The pay of conductors and motormen is the same, and while the latter are exposed to the weather more than the conductors, they have nothing to do but run the cars according to the company's rules, while the conductors have not only to collect fares, but keep an account that must tally with the car register and make out reports for each trip.

[illegible] tors, so thoroughly representative of the south as it was and then with it [illegible] has never been seen in Memphis. An ex-Federal brigadier, an ex-Confederate brigadier and an ex-Confederate colonel were the judges.

Of course the thought had not been seriously entertained by any one that the ex-Confederates—they who had stood in the "hornets' nest" and the "bloody angles" of the fearful days so long past—could do more than make a more or less graceful parade. They were men advanced in years. A third of a century makes somewhat of a difference in one's hearing, in his vision, in the elasticity and responsiveness of his sinews. These men for nearly 30 years had been leaning over desks, wielding tools, engaging in the affairs of commercial or professional life. It was not to be supposed that they could suddenly lay down their pens, their books and their tools, and donning their old habiliments make anything like a serious contest against the crack corps of the Chickasaw guards.

It is said that among the 38 there were only three under 50 years of age, and it was apparent that in the ranks were men old enough to be grandfathers. Yet, to the amazement of the spectators, these men knew how to drill by Hardee's tactics. They had not lost their ability to keep step or to follow their file leaders. They knew how to load and fire in cadence. They knew how to obey commands given rapidly, either for the manual of arms or for evolution. They could wheel like a gate. They could double quick. In other words, these staid and sober citizens demonstrated that they had not forgotten the soldiership that once they knew. The veterans were awarded the prize.

And now an idea occurs growing out of the splendid performance of the ex-Confederates. Let them challenge an equal number of ex-Federals of the north to drill against them upon Memphis ground. It would be an event in which [illegible]

ON PALATIAL YACHTS

DELIGHTFUL CRUISES ENJOYED BY OUR MILLIONAIRE NAVIGATORS.

William A. Slater Will Spend Half a Million In Circumnavigating the Globe on His New Yacht Eleanor, Which Rivals Even the Valiant In Luxuriousness.

The luxurious rivalry of our multimillionaires has created a boom in yacht building. W. K. Vanderbilt's example has started an epidemic of emulation. Since the completion a year or so ago of his magnificent Valiant not less than 15 palatial steam yachts have been launched at various yards in the United States, and several have been purchased or built to order abroad for Americans. The majority of these splendid crafts will start on foreign cruises before another year has passed, most of them having been built or purchased for that especial purpose. Some of them will circumnavigate the globe. Here again Mr. Vanderbilt's example has proved contagious. The modern multimillionaire is not up to date unless he makes a leisurely journey around the earth in his own floating palace. The lesser millionaires, of course, must follow their leaders, so far as circumstances will permit, and the net result is a fleet of pleasure vessels such as never before burdened the waters of the earth.

Foremost among these, taking the pennant even from the Valiant in the matter of luxury, beauty, completeness and costliness, is the steam yacht Eleanor, recently launched at Bath, Me. The Eleanor is owned by William A. Slater of Norwich, Conn., one of the best known of American yachtsmen, and will cost when completed something like $900,000. This seems large to ordinary people, but it is a mere bagatelle to Mr. Slater, who inherited many millions from his father, the late philanthropist, John Fox Slater, who created a trust fund of [illegible] for the education of the negroes of the South. The [illegible] the yacht, wages, etc., will be at least [illegible], and it is likely that large [illegible] amounts of money will be spent in the entertainment of visitors and on inland journeys to points of interest.

THE ELEANOR.

If the Eleanor is completed in time, she will leave New York on June 15, steaming direct to Norway, where Mr. Slater's party will spend this summer. After a visit to St. Petersburg the plan of the journey contemplates a trip through the Mediterranean, with stops at French and Italian ports, and an indefinite stay in the Holy Land and Egypt. Passing through the Suez canal, the Eleanor will cruise southward along the coasts of Zanzibar and Mozambique and around Madagascar and thence across to India, where Mr. Slater expects to spend next winter. The summer of 1895 will be spent in Chinese and Japanese waters, and the following winter among the South Sea islands, whence the yacht will steam to the Sandwich Islands, San Francisco and back to New York around Cape Horn.

That the Eleanor is well equipped for such a voyage goes without saying. The staterooms, main saloon, dining room, music room, library, social hall and children's rooms are finished and furnished in a manner superior to those of any other yacht afloat, not excepting the Valiant. The yacht has a fine electric light plant, including a powerful searchlight, and electric bells; also an icemaking machine, and cold storage rooms, and an apparatus for distilling salt water.

She will also carry several gatling and other rapid firing guns and a cannon or two, and her crew will be trained to use them in case the vessel should arouse the hostility or cupidity of piratical navigators around Madagascar or the Chinese coast. Such a vessel as the Eleanor would make a rich booty for those wretches, and Mr. Slater intends to run as few risks as possible.

Anthony J. Drexel of Philadelphia is also preparing for a cruise around the world in the steam yacht Margarita, which he has had fitted out at Marseilles in the most luxurious manner. He will be accompanied by a party of male friends and expects to be gone about 18 months. Mr. J. H. Laden, the owner of the Columbia, which was recently launched in Philadelphia, has made plans to start on a tour of the world as soon as his vessel is ready, and Mrs. Lucy Carnegie expects to steam away to foreign shores in her steel yacht, the Dungeness, some time in the early fall, shortly after the yacht club races.

FEEDING THE BABY.

Much is written at the present day about the care and feeding of infants by people whose only capability for dealing with the subject is a fertile brain, and whose only aim is to appear in print; every mother knows how unsatisfactory and fallacious such advice is when she attempts to follow it. How to feed the baby is the greatest problem met with in the happy state of motherhood, and upon its solution depends the health, the happiness and the life of the child. If the mother is able to nurse her child, the question of feeding is practically settled; if she is not, she should be guided by those who have had successful experience in feeding babies and not allow herself to experiment with different foods. There are scores of artificial foods offered for sale, but the best is none too good for the baby. Eminent authorities who have thoroughly [illegible]

SHOTS HERE AND THERE

AN "ARGUS" MAN OFF DUTY AIMS AT SEVERAL SUBJECTS.

A Woman to Be Envied by Women—A True Snake Story—Why a Young Woman Will Never Again Climb a Cherry Tree—New York and Philadelphia Milk Prices.

The Elmira Gazette says that there are over 300 doors in ex-Senator Fassett's new residence in that city. In even a very large house nothing like 300 doors would be required to connect the rooms and there is a strong presumption, therefore, that the new Fassett residence is well supplied with closets and that Mrs. Fassett is envied by all the women of Elmira and elsewhere, who are fated to struggle through life, without enough closets.

I've drawn it very mild on snake stories, of late: in fact I can hardly recall when I wrote one, but I heard one yesterday, which differs from most snake stories in that it is absolutely true, and a true snake story is too great a responsibility for a newspaper man not to share with the reading public. A young woman who lives not far from this city climbed a big tree, Tuesday, to pick cherries, and in the fact that she did so the discriminating reader will see a most excellent reason for my not mentioning her name or being exact as to her place of residence.

The young woman had been in the tree for some time, had picked a lot of cherries and, stepping from limb to limb, had climbed well up toward the top of the tree. She wore an old-fashioned sun bonnet which so shut in her face that she could only see directly in front of her and she had not had occasion to lift her eyes upward, which accounts for the fact that she did not discover that she was not alone in the tree until, putting up her hand to climb still higher, it came, not upon the branch alone, but upon something cold and clammy. Startled, she looked up, and saw that she had touched a large blacksnake, which was coiled around the branch just above her head. Frightened don't begin to describe her condition. She dropped her cherries and almost dropped herself, but by some good luck she did not fall and in a moment pulled herself together sufficiently to make a hasty, but very trembling descent. Luckily for her the snake was as badly scared as she was and it wriggled skyward as she climbed earthward. It will be a long time before the young woman recovers from the shock, but it is safe to say that from this time out, she will firmly believe that a cherry tree is no fit place for a young woman.

The price paid for milk in Philadelphia during May was three cents a quart, delivered in that city, and the price for June remains at the same figure. This is better than New York prices for the same period, but not very much better, and the farmers supplying milk to the Philadelphia market seem to have lost the snap they had for so many years when their prices averaged much higher than the New York price. The use of refrigerator cars, which made it possible to haul milk long distances and to tap sources of supply which were once thought inaccessible, has worked to the disadvantage of farmers near Philadelphia as it has to the disadvantage of those living near New York, and it has not been possible for them to maintain the compact organization, which for so long made them masters of the situation and enabled them to fix prices. As showing how the area of Philadelphia's milk supply has been extended it may be noted that the Lehigh Valley railroad now carries to that city milk from Central and Northern New York.

IN THE RAILROAD WORLD.

The Erie is replacing its bridge across the Passaic River at Paterson, by a new structure which is being put up in sections, so as not to interfere with traffic.

—The Susquehanna is making a strong bid for Wilkesbarre freight and by a fast freight train service, lands New York freight in that city in shorter time than any other line. The night passenger train to Wilkesbarre, under the latest time table, is abandoned and an express freight substituted.

Seven Cows Killed by Lightning.

From Our Ellenville Correspondent.

Mr. Joseph A. Houston had the misfortune, during Sunday's thunder shower, to have seven cows killed by lightning. The cows were standing under trees, four under one tree and three under another, a few rods apart. The cattle were insured for [illegible] per head, about two-thirds of their value.

Everybody Likes

SULLIVAN COUNTY COURT.

The Winner Indictments Quashed—A Slander Suit.

Following were the proceedings of the County Court at Monticello, yesterday:

On motion of District Attorney Hill, an indictment found against Herbert Lindeman, in 1893, for attempted seduction, was dismissed for lack of sufficient corroborative evidence to sustain the indictment.

The case of the People vs. Frank Hoehnke was dismissed and the prisoner discharged because no one appeared against him.

The District Attorney moved the trial of the Kilbourne indictment against Benj. W. Winner, and the jury was drawn. Judge Bush, on behalf of the defendant, then moved that the indictment be quashed, because it failed to aver that the alleged acts committed constituted crime and there was no averment that any of the acts committed were false or fraudulent. Thus the indictment was drawn up in precisely the same manner as the Schoonmaker indictment, which was quashed at the last term. Judge Smith made the same disposition of it and ordered the defendant to appear before the next Grand Jury.

The Brabout indictment met the same fate as the foregoing.

In the Peter Menses indictment Mr. Bush insisted that the District Attorney move the case for trial, or that the defendant be dismissed. The District Attorney pleaded that he did not think the case would be called this term and consequently did not have his witnesses in court. The court declined to compel him to move the trial. Mr. Bush then moved that as Winner had, at the time the Schoonmaker indictment was quashed, been ordered to appear before the next Grand Jury, and as, having done so, no one had appeared against him, his securities be discharged. The motion was granted.

In the afternoon the suit of Caroline Labarr against Geo. W. Maney for $1,000 damages, for alleged slander, was tried. The plaintiff charges that defendant circulated stories that she had stolen certain articles from the house of one Jesse Canfield while taking care of Canfield's sick wife. The entire afternoon was occupied with the trial and the court directed the jury to bring in a sealed verdict.

Two Great Days.

The teacher was instructing the arithmetic class in history.

"On what day is Washington's birthday?" she inquired.

"Twenty-second of February," answered the class.

"And Independence day?"

"The Fourth of July."

"What is the difference between the two days?"

This seemed to be a poser, and no reply was forthcoming. Finally a youngster who had been scribbling on a slip of paper held up his hand.

"Good for you, Johnny," said the teacher encouragingly. "Now tell us what the difference is between these two of the greatest days in our national history."

"Four months and 12 days, ma'am," and the teacher was shocked, because she had forgotten there was an arithmetic side to the question as well as a history one.—Detroit Free Press.

Ash Wednesday.

Ash Wednesday is so called from the curious custom of strewing ashes on the head as a sign of penitence. It was probably instituted by Gregory the Great, who was pope from 590 to 604. Originally the ashes were consecrated on the altar before mass, sprinkled with holy water and signed three times with the cross. During this ceremony the priest recited these words, "Memento quod cinis es et in cinerem reverteris." (Remember that thou art dust and must return to dust.) The ashes thus consecrated were then strewn on the heads of the officiating priests and the assembled people. The ashes were usually obtained by burning the palms consecrated on the preceding Palm Sunday.—St. Louis Republic.

Governed by Women.

At the election in Spring Hill, Kan., on April 2, women were elected to all the municipal offices, including mayor, councilmen and police judge. Spring Hill is a town of about 700 inhabitants, on the Missouri river, Fort Scott and Gulf railroad, in Johnson county. It has two churches, a bank and flourishing mills.—Kansas Exchange.

An Eventful Day.

"Well, well!" exclaimed the editor. "If that wasn't a queer experience!"

"What was that?" said the foreman.

"There was a man in here just now who didn't seem to know any more about how a newspaper should be run than I do."—Washington Star.

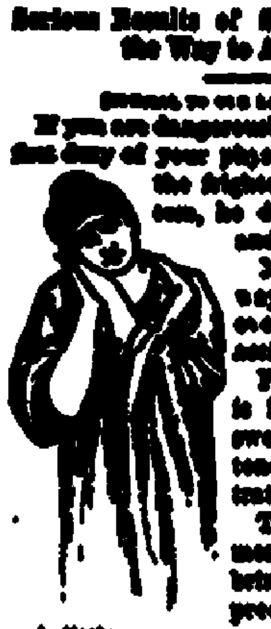
WOMEN MUST SLEEP.

SO SAYS MEDICAL AUTHORITY.

Serious Results of Sleeplessness, and the Way to Avoid It.

(SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.)



If you are dangerously sick, what is the first duty of your physician? He quiets the frightened nervous system, he deadens the pain, and you sleep well.

Men fall by the wayside, victims of overstrained mental activity.

Friends ask, "What is it?" and the answer comes in pitying tones, nervous prostration.

Thousands of women tremble on the brink of the same precipice.

A little more pressure; some sudden grief, real or even imagined unkindness from loved ones, and over the brink fall one more victim of nervous prostration.

It came upon you so quietly, in the beginning, that you were not alarmed. But when sleep deserted you night after night, until your eyes fairly burned the darkness, then you tossed in nervous agony, praying for sleep.

You ought to have known when you ceased to be regular in your courses and you grew so irritable without cause, that there was serious trouble somewhere.

You ought to be told that indigestion, exhaustion, womb displacements, fainting, dizziness, and backache send the nerves wild with affright, and you cannot sleep.

Want of sleep gives birth to a thousand morbid fancies of the brain.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for twenty years has saved women from all this misery. It is the certain cure for all derangements peculiar to women. It has saved them from torments for years, and it will save you. Go to your druggist at once: soon you will be well and sleep like a child.

TO PROTECT THE HOMEMADE.

An Effort to Revive a Custom In England Which Has Already Failed.

The Earl of Denbigh has introduced into the house of lords a bill providing for marking foreign goods, which is practically identical with the measure which was recently laughed out of the commons, and the Earl of Durham, whose energies heretofore have been devoted solely to horse racing and banking his big income which he derives from his collieries, will help in the patriotic work, designed still further to protect native industries against foreign competition. The lords may pass the bill, but the commons are certain to reject it, for many Tories as well as all the Liberals believe the existing merchandise marks are sufficient for all practical purposes. A good many business men of all shades of political belief are strongly of the opinion that the marking of foreign goods has not only failed to help British trade and manufacturers, but has done them serious harm. Foreign customers receiving goods from English shippers marked in accordance with the act with the words, "Made in Germany," etc., forthwith proceed to save the English middleman's commission by dealing directly with the German maker, and so on, whereas, in the good old days they assumed such goods to be of British make.

Virtue is therefore very far from being its own reward. Furthermore, according to an indignant merchant who has been writing to a newspaper, the enormous quantity of goods which formerly came into England in English ships does not come here at all now, being shipped almost direct in foreign vessels. In fact, says this critic, the present law is "protection which protects no English industry and only serves to advertise throughout the world the manufactures of other countries."—New York Sun's London Letter.

A Novel Pack of Cards.

A pack of cards were displayed for sale in a certain window awhile ago which were really very curious and interesting. The kings and queens were veritable personages, as were the knaves, who figured as crown princes of modern history. The queens of Spain, Italy and England made three of the face cards, while there was a pretty compliment to our own "reigning sovereign" in making Mrs. Cleveland queen of hearts. William, Humbert, the czar and the little king of Spain were the four rulers masculine, and the czarowitz, the crown prince of Germany, with his flaxen head, he of Italy and the Prince of Wales made up the rest.—Philadelphia Press.
